What is PHIPA?

PHIPA stands for the Personal Health Information Protection Act (also referred to as, “the Act”). PHIPA is Ontario’s health privacy legislation. To read this Act, visit <https://www.ontario.ca/laws/statute/04p03#BK56>

What is the purpose of FIPPA?

The Act has four (4) main purposes:

1. To establish rules for the collection, use, and disclosure of personal health information about individuals that protect the privacy and confidentiality of that information;
2. To provide individuals with a right of access to their personal health information;
3. To provide individuals with a right to correct or amend their personal health information, subject to specific limitations; and
4. To provide for independent review of complaints with respect to personal health information

What is Personal Health Information?

Personal Health Information (PHI) is outlined in section 4 of the Act, and is described as:

“Identifying information” about an individual in oral or recorded form, if the information:

- (a) relates to the physical or mental health of the individual;
- (b) relates to the providing of health care to the individual;
- (c) is a plan of service within the meaning of the Home Care and Community Services Act, 1994;
- (d) relates to payments or eligibility for health care, or eligibility for coverage for health care;
- (e) relates to the donation by the individual of any body part or bodily substance of the individual;
- (f) is the individual’s health number, or
- (g) identifies an individual’s substitute decision-maker.

Identifying information means information that identifies an individual or for which it is reasonably foreseeable in the circumstances that it could be utilized, either alone or with other information, to identify an individual

What is NOT Personal Health Information?

Any information that has been collected in which all personal identifiers have been removed (otherwise referred to as “de-identified” or “anonymized”), making determination of identity impossible.

How does Southlake Regional Health Centre protect my PHI?

Southlake is committed to protecting the privacy of its patients. We employ several mechanisms to ensure that your PHI is kept confidential. Here are a few ways we do this:

1. Technical Safeguards: Southlake’s Information Technology (IT) department monitors the hospital’s information security capabilities on an ongoing basis. The IT department issues “role based” access controls, which means that only authorized staff have access to electronic information on a need to know basis. Furthermore, Southlake’s patient information is kept on systems which require the use of passwords and user authentication.
2. Physical Safeguards: Southlake has a number of physical safeguards and measures to protect patient records including: facility access controls (swipe cards and locked cabinets), clean desk policies, and mobile device security requirements.
3. Administrative Safeguards: Southlake’s extensive privacy policies govern the way in which all hospital employees manage and access patient information. In addition, all hospital employees, contractors, volunteers, physicians, and special visitors must sign a Confidentiality Agreement. The Southlake Privacy Office conducts staff training, issues educational bulletins and is passionate about promoting a culture of privacy at the hospital.
4. Regular Audits: The Privacy Office conducts regular and random audits of system access and use, and may recommend disciplinary action for non-compliance with legal or hospital requirements governing access to information.
